

Structural Ageism in Aotearoa

An analysis of the presence of Older People in strategic documentation across government

Ageism is the last socially acceptable form of discrimination.

It is defined as prejudice or discrimination against a person based on their age, and can occur in a number of ways:

Internalised - the way we think about or impact ourselves based on our age
 Interpersonal - the way we relate to or discriminate against others based on their age
 Cultural - specific cultural ideas that impact people of certain ages
 Structural - the way that systems and policies impact people based on their age

Structural Ageism is the sum effect of policies that negatively impact older people, but it is also the absence of policies which consider older people, causing them to be deprioritized in policy settings

In early 2024, we undertook an analysis of key strategic documents across Te Kāwanatanga o Aotearoa | The New Zealand Government to determine what extent Structural Ageism is impacting our policy settings.

Your government entity was part of this assessment.

Who We Assessed

Of the 221 government entities, we determined which were the most relevant to older people, and which were the most important to their quality of life.

This left us with 35 entities for our assessment, some of which are no longer functioning.

Te Aka Whai Ora

Māori Health Authority

Te Puna Aonui

Responding, healing, strengthening

For each of these entities, we looked for three key pieces of documentation:

Briefings to Incoming Ministers - what an entity prioritises telling its minister

Statements of Intent or Strategic Intentions - what an entity prioritises including in its own workstreams

Specific Strategy Plans or Statements of Performance - what an entity prioritises in accountability to the public

We were able to find at least one of these for each of the entities above, but thirteen entities had incomplete assessments as at least one of these was not available online.

In each of these documents we searched for key terms to let us know if older people were present -

Direct Mentions Old* Age<sup>3</sup> Senior Kaumātua Kuia Koeke Elder

Other Mentions Pension* Superannua* Retire* Vulnerab* Medically' Marginalise* Frail*

Terms were truncated to ensure we could find all instances (ie, age, aged and ageing) in one search

All searches were assessed to ensure they were relevant to our assessment (ie, age of people, not services or infrastructure, or superannuation recipients, not the investments of the superannuation fund itself)

A single mention of older people was sufficient to 'pass' this assessment.

What We Found

Most government entities do not have specific mentions of older people in their key documentation.

This diagram shows only the specificmention of older people

Briefings to Incoming Ministers Retirement Commissioner Wellbeing Commission Family Violence Kāinga Ora Executive Board Health and Disability Commission Ministry for Women Ministry of Social Ministry of Housing Strategic Specific Intentions or Strategy Plans Statements of or Statements of Intent

Performance

No specific mentions in documents we could find

IRD
Electricity Authority
Health Research Council
Health Quality and Safety Commission
Māori Health Authority
Ministry for Ethnic Communities
Ministry for Pacific People
Ministry of Justice
National Emergency Management
Agency
Artificial Limb Service
PHARMAC
Serious Fraud Office
Social Wellbeing Agency
Te Puni Kökiri
Blood and Organ Service
Office of the Ombudsman
Public Service Commission
Statistics New Zealand
The Treasury

Why Does It Matter?

Being invisible in strategic documents means not being specifically considered when decisions are being made

Every one of these entities was designated as important to older people and their quality of life, yet more than half have no specific consideration for older people in their key documentation

Our older people deserve to be considered in the policies, strategies, and advice to government of entities that impact their lives

How can we help?

The New Zealand Council of Christian Social Services invites your government entity to a conversation about how you can combat Structural Ageism within your own work.

Regardless of where your organisation sits in our original assessment, there is always work to be done to improve the way we address ageism.

Together, we can make a difference in combatting the last socially acceptable form of discrimination and make Aotearoa New Zealand a world-leading force to combat ageism.

Ko Wai Tātou

The New Zealand Council of Christian Social Services (NZCCSS) represents more than 230 member organisations providing a range of community, health and social support services across Aotearoa. These organisations include some of the most recognised and highly regarded names in social service provision, and all are world famous in their own rohe.

Nationally, the range and scope of our member networks is extensive. Around 230 separate providers in 55 towns and cities throughout New Zealand deliver 37 types of services through 1,024 programmes. Members employ over 5,000 full-time staff, 7,000 part-time staff, and coordinate almost 16,000 volunteers.

Their mahi informs our deep understanding of the everyday lives of New Zealand communities as we work towards achieving a just and compassionate society for all. We see this work as an extension of the mission of Jesus Christ, which we seek to fulfil through our commitment to giving priority to the systematically disempowered. We feel a deep sense of responsibility to uphold the articles of Te Tiriti o Waitangi and take action to push for equity for all.

Our work is focused in three policy areas – Equity and Inclusion, Children and Families, and Older People. For each area, we have a specialist working group made up of leaders of service organisations from across the country who provide up-to-date knowledge of experiences and need in their communities. We call these groups 'Policy Groups'.

This knowledge, along with input from the representatives of Council's six members, informs our mahi of providing research, representation, connection, good practice dissemination, policy advice / information and advocacy services for our members.

Our Member Organisations

